Procurement Pathways: Title 39 and Title 41

For Alabama public clients, PrismPoint's services may align with different procurement pathways depending on the scope of work, project type, and agency requirements.

Title 39 may apply when the engagement is connected to public works, construction coordination, renovation support, project delivery, or owner's representation tied to a capital improvement project.

Title 41 may apply when the engagement is structured as professional services, consulting, planning support, compliance review, safety training, project advisory, or other non-public-works support services.

Why this matters: PrismPoint can help clients evaluate the appropriate path for owner's representation, project advisory support, safety training, compliance assistance, and related professional services. Public clients should confirm the final procurement method with their purchasing, legal, or contracting authority.
